

From The Principal...

An Inspiring Vision - Change Leaders

Jeff Bezos, the CEO of Amazon, was recently asked, "What is going to change in the next 10 years?" Bezos replied that the interviewer was actually asking the wrong question. He suggested that the right question was actually, "What is not going to change in the next 10 years?"

Current research overwhelmingly suggests that KAS students will complete their schooling and move into a world which is infinitely more complex than the world that their parents faced upon leaving school. In fact, amongst the uncertainty of life, one thing we can be certain of is that our students will be entering communities and workplaces which will become infinitely more complicated and complex with each passing year.

Research also indicates that our school should be preparing students for:

An innovation and creativity-driven economy: They will enter a job market that rewards creativity, flexible thinking, on-the-job learning and comfort with technology.

A more globally-connected world: Their classmates and co-workers may live in the same zip code or across the globe.

Information overflow: We get dizzying amounts of information every day. It can be hard to figure out what is reliable and how to use it.

An expanded civic life: citizens are active in physical communities, online and through social media, getting involved in local politics as well as global initiatives. <http://www.p21.org/our-work/citizenship/a-parents-guide>

KAS is committed to taking the ongoing journey of change to position our school to deliver a nurturing and supportive learning program that successfully delivers the BIG 4 of 21st century learning – Critical Thinking, Communication, Collaboration and Creativity. This journey of change will be ongoing, with our school seeking to lead change, not simply respond to it.

For this reason, our school's successful funding application to build a project-based learning (PBL) and STEM facility, now due to open in 2017, will help to ensure that while much will change over the next 10 years, KAS students will have the opportunity to become change leaders with skill sets that match the needs of our globally connected world - an inspiring vision for both our school and its students and community.

PRIMARY SCHOOL ANNOUNCEMENTS

STEM CHALLENGE FOR TERM 4

In week 9, all of the primary students will be involved in a 'cardboard challenge'. Please could you start collecting cardboard at home, especially large sheets and boxes to donate to your child's class. If you can't store the cardboard at home, feel free to bring it into my classroom and I will find a space for it.

Thank you, Mrs Bennett.

This term we are learning about families and cultures from all around the world. To celebrate and enrich their learning, students are invited to come to school dressed in national or cultural costumes from another country where they will participate in Year One's Multicultural Parade to be held at 9am on Tuesday 20th of October. Please let Miss Baxter and Mrs Hackett know if you are planning to attend by returning the note that was given to your child.

THRASS PARENT INFORMATION EVENING

KAS will be holding an information evening for parents. Please feel free to come along. It will be held in the Learning Enrichment room on Wednesday 21st October from 5:30pm to 6:30pm. The aim of the session is to:

- Answer questions parents may have about THRASS.
- How parents can use THRASS at home to further support students phonics and literacy

What THRASS resources/activities can be used at home to familiarise students with the THRASS chart

SCIENCE FAIR 2015 - WINNERS ANNOUNCED!

Please note that the winners of the Science Fair for Year 5 and 6 will be announced this Friday 16th October in 3-6 Chapel (9:55-10:55am). We would love it if any parents could come along to help KAS celebrate the winners' achievements.

CAREERS - SAVE THE DATE - 20 October 2015

Southern Cross University will be holding a Senior Schools Day at the Coffs Harbour campus which all Year 11's are invited to attend. It will give students an opportunity to explore what their courses of interest involve and potential career outcomes. Sessions will cover courses available at Southern Cross University's three campuses, university life, the Star Entry Scheme, costs and scholarship opportunities.

Building parent-school partnerships

WORDS Michael Grose

Developing your child's social media scripts

It's important to start conversations with children about using social media at a young age to prepare them to be savvy users when we're not around.

"If a job's worth doing, it's worth doing well."

This mantra always pops into mind whenever I'm about to cut some corners or do a rushed job in any endeavour. As a result I double-check every article I write for mistakes. I over prepare every talk I give. And I continually edit and re-edit my books. This message keeps me at the top of my game.

I can thank, or blame, my mother for inserting this mantra in my mind as she repeated it whenever I did a rushed job as a youngster making my bed, doing homework or cleaning up my bathroom mess.

Parents of every generation have always found ways to frame messages of safety and success for their children to remember. Parents of past generations who only had to contend with the offline or real world intuitively knew that they needed to teach child important lessons about safety and manners rather than assume they'll be understood.

The same maxim holds true for the world of social media that children now inhabit from an increasingly young age. Even though our children are growing up with technology as a part of their every day lives, they will still make plenty of mistakes while using it. This means we need to have direct conversations with our kids about the comments and posts that are okay to make using social media of all forms.

As parents we teach our kids to talk politely and clearly so that they know how to speak to others when we're not around. In effect, we give our kids social scripts to fall back on when they talk to friends, teachers and relatives. There's no guarantee they'll look an adult in the eye when they speak to them, but our discussions, reminders and lessons about manners will hopefully hold up when we're not around.

The same applies to social media. Our conversations and lessons will prepare them to be savvy users when we're not around. Here are some ideas to get you started:

1 "Is this worth posting?"

The relatively impersonal nature of social media means that we can post information and pictures with relative immunity. Also its immediacy means that we can do so without much thought. This means that kids need to be very critical about what they see online. 'Is this accurate?' and 'Is this worth posting?' are two valid questions children can ask when they read posts placed by others.

2 "Have you taken a big breath?"

A child who blurts out everything that comes into his mind without thinking is sure to put plenty of people offside. 'Think before you speak' is the type of message that every child should have in mind.

... Developing your child's social media scripts ...

The same applies to social media. Just because they think something doesn't mean they post it. 'Take a big breath' may just about be the most important message to give your kids about social media.

3 "Do you want the principal to see this?!"

An invitation to a teenage birthday party posted on social media is one way to get more attendees than you bargained for! The viral nature of social media means that kids should only post messages and photos that they want to be spread and read by a large audience.

4 "How does this post make you feel?"

We need to teach kids that not every post needs to be commented upon and not every thought needs to be shared, particularly when they are angry. Teaching them to walk away and then to step back in when they've calmed down is perhaps the most important communication lesson of all. It is very relevant to social media as emotions are often the last thing on many people's minds when they haphazardly post a message.

5 "How will you fix this?"

Social media just like any social space requires kids to behave ethically and with kindness. When kids overstep the mark and post hurtful things then it's fair that they fix their mistakes, and apologise. It's reasonable that we teach our children to act with tolerance and with empathy online, and if mean things are posted then they should be expected to try to repair relationships through social media, just as they should offline.

I agree with Galit Breen author of Kindness Wins who says that parents should have conversations with children around social media before they reach the teenage years. Starting these conversations when they are younger means that they are more open to our parenting opinions, as well as being a little more amenable to the messages of tolerance, kindness and empathy that we need to encourage.

STUDENT SERVICES ANNOUNCEMENTS

WHOOPIING COUGH INFORMATION FOR SCHOOLS

There is an outbreak of whooping cough (pertussis) in NSW, mainly affecting school-aged children.

Coughing spreads the infection to others nearby. Whooping cough can spread to anyone at home, including younger brothers and sisters. Whooping cough can be especially dangerous for babies.

Whooping cough starts like a cold and progresses to bouts of coughing that can last for many weeks. The infection can occur even in fully-vaccinated children. Older children may just have a cough that is persistent and may be worse at night.

- Children with these symptoms should see a doctor.
- If your doctor diagnoses whooping cough in your school-aged child, please let the school know and keep your child at home until they have taken 5 days of antibiotics. Keep coughing children away from babies.

Whooping cough vaccines give good protection against infection but immunity fades with time. Check that all your children are up to date with their vaccines, due at 6 weeks, 4 months, 6 months, 4 years and 12 years of age (offered to all Year 7 students through the NSW school-based vaccination program). A booster is also recommended at 18 months of age.

A booster dose of vaccine is also recommended for adults that are in contact with young children, such as school staff and parents. Pregnant women are recommended to have a booster dose during each pregnancy and this is funded by NSW Health. Those who are new parents or carers of babies should consult their general practitioner about appropriate immunisation.

Your local public health unit can provide advice about whooping cough on 1300 066 055 or visit the NSW Health website <http://www.health.nsw.gov.au/Infectious/whoopingcough/Pages/Information-for-childcare-and-schools.aspx>

JEWELLERY

We have noticed some of our secondary school students are having their noses pierced and wearing them to school. They are then being asked to remove them. Please find the following extract from the KAS Uniform Policy stating that body piercings other earrings, being either a small silver or gold stud or sleeper, are unacceptable:

'The wearing of jewellery is discouraged for health and safety reasons. Students are permitted to wear a wrist watch. Earrings must be limited to a maximum of one small, discreet, plain gold or silver ear stud or sleeper in a single lobe, or alternatively one in each lobe. No visible body piercings, such as, but not limited to, nose, lip, tongue, or eyebrow are permitted. This includes all clear plastic piercings. Students are not permitted to cover such piercing with band-aids, medical plaster or any such other material.'

Sport and Recreation's Swim and Survive lessons

Australian summers usually involve plenty of fun in and around the water, but no parent should forget how important it is to make sure children stay safe.

Sport and Recreation's Swim and Survive classes for preschoolers and school-aged children help youngsters learn important ways to be safe and enjoy our pools, rivers, beaches and lakes.

The intensive nine-day programs provide wonderful results, and are great fun as well. Plus, family discounts make our program affordable for all the children in the family.

Sport and Recreation runs Swim and Survive classes in pools throughout regional NSW.

Our instructors are nationally qualified and screened for their suitability to work with children.

Prices for nine lessons are $69 for school-aged children and $49 for preschoolers (prices exclude pool entry fee).
